Our System of Farming.

It has been intimated by me, in a former article, that the system of farming in this country was bad, and should be changed. I have not the least doubt of it,—most men believe to the same opinion. There are two facts which prove this conclusively. First, the farmer does not receive sufficient pay for his labor. The other is, that his capital invested in land, &c., does not yield a fair percent. We think not. For people possess the elements of true greatness. They have shown this beyond the shadow of a doubt, in all the trying scenes through which they have passed, and are now passing; but this is attributable rather to the accursed system of slavery of the South, under which we have groined for the last half century; but, thank God, we are free, and if we would continue to be free we must cease to work for nothing, but must make our labor pay. The sun does not shine on a country so desirable as East Tennessee, and, under the genial spirit of freedom, will yet bloom and blossom as the rose. Many men have a vague and ill-defined idea, that some how at some time or other, foreign enterprise, skill and capital will pour in upon us and make our country a perfect Eden without our aid. This delusion will be fatal if persisted in. Capital has no heart, but has a head full of eyes and will not invest where there is no enterprise among the people. Farmers are continually told, by those who know but very little about it, to farm a little land and make it good. That does not go far enough—it would leave three-fourths of the land waste, and, in the present condition of the country, is impracticable; for it takes time and capital to bring poor land up; and, without a home market, a family could not be supported on a little poor land. If you would detach the ivy from the ground you must give it something on which to climb, so if farmers change their present mode of farming they must see something that will accomplish in a pre-emptive degree what is desired. That is what I wish to point out in these articles, and will devote my next to that very thing.

May 10, 1868. Agricola.

Value of Grass Lands.

The time has not yet come when farmers appreciate, as they should, the value of grass. Every year dairy products are becoming dearer because the grass region is limited, and only a few years will be required to give any farm natural for grass a value which which now would be thought excessive. If I wished to buy a farm for my posterity which would continually increase in value, I would choose it in the region of grass, for I do know that, during the course of one's life, a grass farm will bring more money and comfort, and with less work, than any other farm, whether on the Scioto, the Wabash, or the Mississippi bottoms, nor can a farm of equal value be selected and made any where within the belt formed by the tropics the whole world round.—New York Tribune.

Remedy for the Fly in Wheat.

A correspondent of the Rural Gentleman gives the following remedy for fly in wheat: We are all aware that the egg is deposited in the growing stock, in the fall of the year as well as the spring. I sowed my wheat early and it advanced well by winter. During the freezing weather, I turned all the stock of my farm upon it, and let them pasture several hours during each day; the ground was frozen. After about three weeks, they had eaten the wheat close to the ground; so close, that a casual passer by would not have known that it was a wheat field at all. I then allowed it to grow until about the middle of April, when I again pastured it close for a few days. By this means I was quite sure the egg deposited was destroyed by the cattle. The winter pasture destroyed the autumn deposit, the April, the spring deposit. During all the time the roots, by receiving all the strength of the soil, were strong and ready now to produce the stock which it did; and no fly was seen in any part of the field—while in an adjoining one it had done considerable damage.

At harvest my crop was heavy, looking as well as any part of my farm, and producing wheat of the finest quality.

I believe sheep would pasture more effectually and closer than cattle, but having none I pastured the cattle.—Now I know that the prejudices of the farmer would be against an experiment of this kind. But my word for it, it will do no harm, but very generally do much good.

In the application of lime for manure, it is recommended that it be slaked with brine. Both lime and salt are favorably as manure when separately applied. Slaking lime thus, would combine the qualities of the substances and probably each will thus be made to promote the efficiency of the other.

Salt with Wheat.

It is said the salt, sown with wheat, adds stiffness to the straw, prevents rust, and causes it to ripen much earlier.

What Sours Milk.

The manager of a cheese factory at a dairymen's convention lately held at Elgin, Illinois, said that ill usage of a cow would cause her milk to sour soon after being drawn, and that the amount and quality of the produce of milk depends largely upon the degree of kindness to cows.

He has learned that if we get one or two cows irritated, and put their milk with other cows, that have been kept quiet, it will sour very quick. Farmers will see from this that kindness to cows as well as to other animals pays.

JOHN DEERE & CO. IMPROVED HAWKEYE CORN AND COTTON CULTIVATOR.

Above we give a cut of the Sulky Corn and Cotton Cultivator, widely and favorably known as the Hawk-eye. It has been before the farming community six years, and having been tested in every capacity in which such implements can be made successful, and received their unqualified approval, we can recommend it with confidence as the most thorough and perfect implement of its class in use.

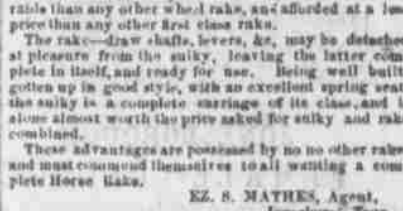

It is a most perfect and reliable machine, and is well adapted for small or hilly farms. It embraces all the flexibility and strength of the Mower, with the addition of a cutting bar, and is a self-propelled machine, which can be cut from one to fifteen feet wide, the points of the guards or fingers can be raised or lowered so as to take up lodged or fallen grain in the most perfect manner.

PHILADELPHIA UNIVERSITY OF Medicine and Surgery.

The Philadelphia University of Medicine and Surgery was organized in 1868. Chartered by the Legislature, February 26, 1865. Name changed by a legislative act to the Philadelphia University of Medicine and Surgery in 1867. In 1863 it purchased the Pennsylvania Medical College, established in 1822, and the Philadelphia Medical College, which had previously been merged into the Pennsylvania Medical College. In 1864 it purchased the Pennsylvania Medical College. The Trustees of the separate schools united, petitioned, and obtained a special act of the Legislature, consolidating these institutions and changing their name to that of the Philadelphia University of Medicine and Surgery, March 15, 1865. All these various acts are published in the statutes of Pennsylvania. The cost of the building and museum was over one hundred thousand dollars. It will be observed that the University, as now organized, is the legal representative of the four medical colleges which it has absorbed. It is a liberal school of medicine, and is not to be distinguished from any medical college, but embraces in its teachings everything of value to the profession.

Our Latest Improved NEW SCALE PIANO-FORTE. GROVESTEEN & CO. 499 Broadway, N. Y.

THESE INSTRUMENTS, after the most satisfactory testimonials from the first Pianist in the country, who at our solicitation, have tested them in the severest manner possible, have been pronounced

THE FINEST SQUARE PIANO-FORTE MADE IN THE WORLD.

It has always been our policy during the thirty-six years that we have manufactured Pianos, twelve thousand of which are now in use in the United States and Europe, to give the finest instruments at the lowest cost.—Our superior facilities enable us to offer them from one to three hundred dollars less than any other First Class Pianos.

The tone of these instruments are remarkable for their peculiar Sweetness and Great Brilliance. Never losing their quality when forced to their utmost capacity. The lower register retaining its positiveness does not destroy the middle and upper registers by mingling with them in disagreeable confusion. The refined beauty of tone being equally delightful to the unpracticed and to the most cultivated ear.

They are an entirely new style of Piano, finished in the most superb manner, with four full round burners front and back, heavily carved legs and Lyre Serpentine Base richly moulded, and each instrument is fully warranted for five years.
